

BOOK PRESENTATION

MOURNING REMAINS

STATE ATROCITY, EXHUMATIONS, AND GOVERNING THE DISAPPEARED IN PERU'S POSTWAR ANDES

ISAIAS ROJAS-PEREZ

Thursday, November 2, 2017

5:30pm to 8:00pm

Dana Room, 4th floor
John Cotton Dana Library
Rutgers University-Newark
185 University Av., Newark, NJ

COMMENTATORS:

Zoe Crossland

Department of Anthropology
Columbia University

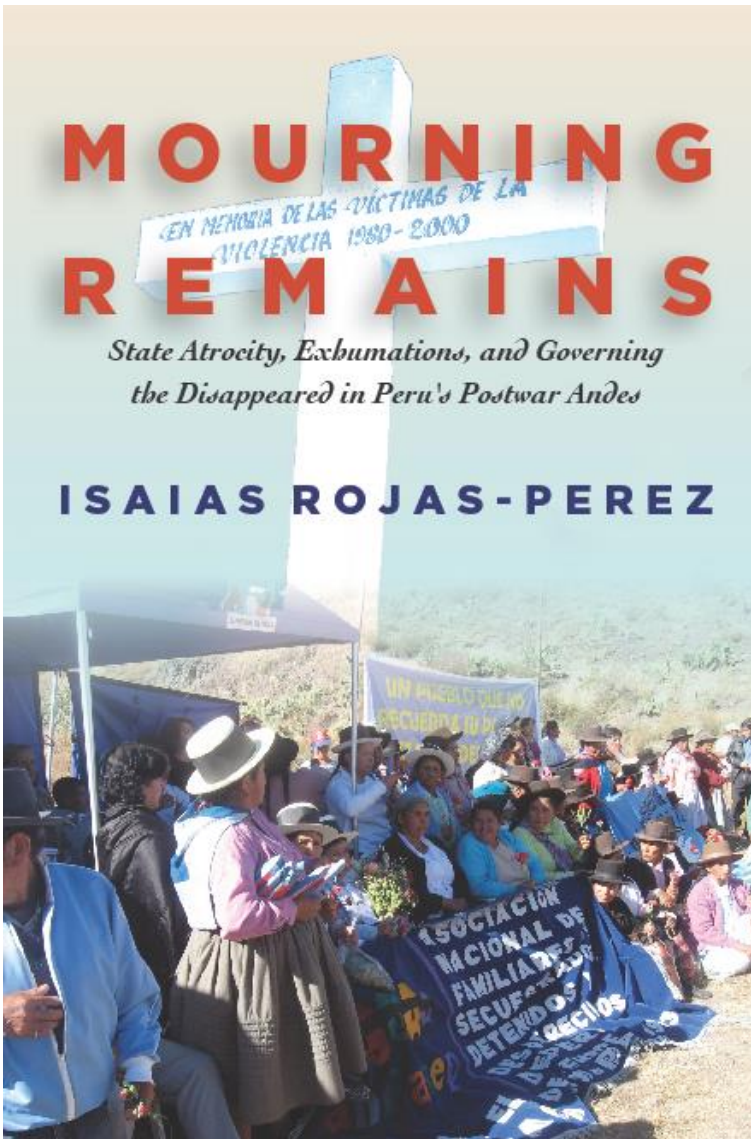

Daniella Gandolfo

Department of Anthropology
Wesleyan University

Antonio Espinoza

Department of History
Virginia Commonwealth University

Free and open to all with light refreshments provided.

Isaias Rojas-Perez is associate professor of anthropology at Rutgers-Newark. His research interests include a variety of topics in social and cultural theory, focusing on sovereignty, governmentality, violence, rights, time and memory, and the ritualization of death in Andean Peru.

RUTGERS
UNIVERSITY | NEWARK

Presented by the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, and co-sponsored by the Peace and Conflict Studies MA Program, the Global Urban Studies Program, the International Institute for Peace, and the Center for the Study of Genocide and Human Rights.