COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course focuses on the diverse political, socioeconomic, and cultural developments in the Middle East and North Africa, from the late Ottoman era to the present. The course will analyze events, ideas, and movements including nationalism, migrations, political Islam, regional conflicts, and popular uprisings through recent secondary research, primary sources, art, literary fiction, and film. It will further identify methods used in interdisciplinary study of the Middle East and highlight the role of technology, gender, the environment, and legal structures in historical analysis. By contextualizing the events that shaped the Middle East over the past century - while focusing on the bottom-up perspective, this course will provide an understanding of the region and its inhabitants in a comparative global framework.

LEARNING OUTCOMES
Students in this class will be able to:
- Demonstrate knowledge of key figures, events, and institutions associated with the Middle East.
- Contextualize interdisciplinary studies and methodologies in understanding the history of the Middle East.
- Understand historical factors that have contributed to the development of institutions and values of today’s world.
- Critically read primary sources and familiarize themselves with the methodology for interpreting them.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Students are required to read the assignments before class each week, write a response online, and participate in class discussions. There are three exams and three papers.

ATTENDANCE is mandatory and only 3 excused (documented) absences are allowed before grade is affected. Silent attendance does not earn full credit. Class work cannot be made up – it depends on being in class. Recognized grounds for absence are illness requiring medical attention, curricular or extracurricular activities approved by the faculty, personal obligations claimed by the student and recognized as valid, recognized religious holidays, and severe inclement weather causing dangerous traveling conditions. Please be aware of Rutgers policy where any student who misses eight or more sessions through any combination of excused and unexcused absences will not earn credit in this class. Such students should withdraw to avoid getting an F.

- Use of electronic devices is prohibited in class. Students using them will be marked absent.
- No student may record the class in any fashion unless they have written permission from the teacher and the recording device is visible to everyone in the classroom.

EXAMS There are three exams: Two exams during the semester focus on class material. The final exam is take home essay question where students are expected to show the grasp of historical knowledge and cognizance of overarching themes covered during the semester. No makeups are available. In the case of a schedule conflict or an unavoidable delay in taking an exam or completing an assignment, the student should discuss the issue with the instructor.

Written Assignments Written response to weekly readings is due every Sunday on Blackboard’s discussion board. Students should write a brief response to the readings and engage in discussion/respond to other students’ comments. The responses should focus on all the readings and media assigned for each week. Three papers Paper 1 - Portrait of a Turkish Family due March 1; Paper 2 - Miramar due March 27; Paper 3 - “Turtles Can Fly” due April 26, are due on Blackboard. Emailed or late papers are not acceptable. Papers are to be written in the format of a book/film review (guidelines on Blackboard). Each paper should be 3 pages, double-spaced; Times New Roman font 12, with 1 inch margins and, if using outside sources, conform to the citation guidelines as per the Chicago Manual of Style. Papers should include discussion and analysis in light of material assigned in class as well as outside sources when possible, and not solely summarize the book or class notes. Written assignments will be graded based on content and accuracy, evidence used to support the analysis and interpretation, grammar, spelling, punctuation, clarity of thinking and writing, organization, and presentation. Students are strongly encouraged to visit the Writing Center: https://www.ncas.rutgers.edu/writingcenter for help with brainstorming or organizing ideas or for feedback on a draft.

Academic Integrity

Principles of academic integrity require that Rutgers University students:
- properly acknowledge and cite all use of the ideas, results, or words of others
- properly acknowledge all contributors to a given piece of work
- make sure that all work submitted as his or her own in a course or other academic activity is produced without the aid of unsanctioned materials or unsanctioned collaboration
- obtain all data or results by ethical means and report them accurately without suppressing any results inconsistent with his or her interpretation or conclusions
- treat all other students in an ethical manner, respecting their integrity and right to pursue their educational goals without interference. This requires that a student neither facilitate academic dishonesty by others nor obstruct their academic progress
- uphold the canons of the ethical or professional code of the profession for which he or she is preparing.

DISABILITY SERVICES

Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus’ disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form. For more information please contact the Office of Disability Services in the Paul Robeson Campus Center, in suite 219, by phone at 973-353-5375 or by email at odsnewark@newark.rutgers.edu.
