This course examines Western Civilization from ancient times to roughly the 1600s. The main requirements are to attend class regularly and to do every reading by the evening we discuss it.

GRADING
TESTS: There will be a midterm on Mon. June 20 and a final exam on Wednesday, July 6 in the classroom. The format for these tests will be a series of short essays (1/2 to 1 page). The final is comprehensive but will emphasize the material from after the midterm. See the exam instructions in the course reader.

LECTURE QUESTIONS: Each evening consists of two sessions, one before and one after break. At the end of each session, you must hand in a 3x5 card with your name and at least one brief question or comment on the material covered in that session. In order to receive credit, your card must contain a question or comment on the material for that session.

Each unexcused absence lowers this score by ten points, so missing an entire evening without a documented excuse lowers this score by twenty points. Arriving late or leaving early three times without securing permission equals one unexcused absence. If you believe an absence should be excused, it is your responsibility to provide written documentation. No excuses will be accepted after the final exam.

Your overall course grade will fall by five points for each unexcused absence starting with the third one. Any student who misses six or more sessions for any combination of excused and unexcused absences will not earn credit in this course and should withdraw before the deadline to avoid getting an F.

CLASS PARTICIPATION: Everyone is required to participate regularly in class discussions, either by asking questions or by making relevant comments. Your overall score will reflect both the quality and quantity of your participation. You must speak at least once in every session to earn a score of 90 or higher. Quality of participation requires demonstrating familiarity with the assigned readings. Sleeping, texting, cell-phone usage, disruptions, repeatedly leaving the room during class, and failing to pay attention all lower this score. Laptops are not allowed in this class.

QUIZZES: Because this class is built around discussion of the readings, it is essential that you come to class having done all the readings carefully. To ensure that you do so, there will be several unannounced quizzes. Each quiz will consist of about ten short but specific questions about that evening’s readings. The lowest grade on the quizzes will not count.
